

James Tansey

James Tansey co-founded the Canadian carbon offset company, Offsetters, in 2005 and currently sits as its President. He is the Executive Director of the Centre for Sustainability and Social Innovation, and Associate Professor, at the University of British Columbia's Sauder School of Business.

James' research activities cover a number of areas including social enterprise, climate change, social impacts and acceptability of new technologies, and emerging international markets for carbon exchange.